

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Selecting content for processing based on user device preferences and characteristics of the user devices. Embodiments of the invention include a notification having different content formatted for a plurality of different user devices. In this manner, the content provider delivers content without knowing a priori the specific user device that will process the content. The content includes non-rendered content such as extensible markup language (XML) data.